Dear Friends,

It gives us immense pleasure to invite you all for the two day national seminar on Child Rights – issues and challenges on 29th and 30th September 2014. We extend a warm welcome to your friends and yourself for the seminar.

About the University

The Tamil Nadu Dr. Ambedkar Law University is a premier institution for legal education, established in the year 1997 in pursuance of the Tamil Nadu Act No.43 of 1997. His Excellency Shri K.R.Narayanan, the then President of India inaugurated it on September 9, 1997. As a sui generis model, the university is the first of its kind in the country offering legal Education both on its campus and through the affiliated law colleges in the state of Tamil Nadu. It is endowed with the authority to grant affiliation to law colleges in the state to promote legal education, to institute degrees, titles, diplomas, other academic distinctions and to pursue higher level research. All the seven Government law colleges and one private law college stand affiliated to the Tamil Nadu Dr. Ambedkar Law University. The University has established the School Of Excellence In Law in the University campus. In the race for reaching heights in legal education and legal specializations, the Tamil Nadu Dr.Ambedkar Law University is in the forefront with renewed efforts in offering quality education, skills, training and furthering the focus on the Post Graduate studies in Law with the visionary leadership of its present Vice-Chancellor Prof. (Dr).P.Vanangamudi.

Main Theme of the Seminar

Children are part of an unparallel effort to establish and maintain a global community based on universal, but evolving standards of human decency, morality and dignity. The development of children is the top most priority on the country's development scheme, because they constitute our supreme assets and also the future human resources of the country. The best possible investment – the investment that promises the highest returns is to ensure that every child grows up in a conducive environment to his or her development. While India has, over the past few decades, made considerable strides in ensuring child survival and basic education, there is much room for improvement. When the major indicators for the Indian child's development like – maternal mortality, birth weight, immunization, nutritional level and basic education are compared with that of other developing countries, it is conspicuous that there is a dire need for interventions.

The Indian Constitution has ample provisions for the protection, development and welfare of children. There are a wide range of laws that guarantee children, their rights and entitlements as encapsulated in the Constitution, coupled with the UN Convention of the Rights of the Child. As part of the various five year plans scores of programmes have been launched aiming at rendering services to child in areas of Health, Nutrition and Education.

In 1974 the Government of India adopted a National Policy for Children "deciding the nation's child as supremely important assets". The Department of women and child Development was set up by the Ministry of Human Resource development in 1985. The National Plan for Children was adopted in 1992 wherein the Government of India ratified the Convention of the Rights of the Child on 12th November 1992. Most of the rights detailed in the Convention are resonated in the Constitution of India. The rights have been augmented through the process of judicial interpretations and review.

Rights as declared policies may be formulated but unless the life of the child in the family and community gets enhanced these efforts may turn-out to be stale. There is a clarion need to raise awareness and create a mindset in the society in respecting the rights of the children. There is a dire need to empower the younger generation to assert their basic rights in order to realize their full potential.

The way we treat our children reflects our moral system. There is no duty pivotal than in ensuring that their rights are respected, their welfare is protected and their lives are free from fear and want and that they grow up in peace.

In the present context the vision is an India where all children have an opportunity; they need for their holistic development. Then the obvious question that props-up is, despite significant investments and a conducive policy framework why the status of Indian children far from satisfactory? What is the road forward to achieve this vision? It is with the objective of unraveling solutions to these questions the TNDALU proposes to organize a two day National Seminar on Child Rights: Issues and Challenges. The seminar shall provide a platform for academicians, Advocates, Officials from various departments, research scholars NGOs, policy makers; Child rights activists, and other stakeholders to address the challenges in protecting the rights of the children.
